DEROCRATIC TRIUMPHS.

The election in Connecticut yesterday, we are led to believe from the tone of the dispatches, resulted in an over- nine years to run from date of passagewhelming Democratic victory, by the and irrepealable according to section 8 election of Ingersoll over all opponents, of article 11 of the constitution-says in and the State legislature having a good Democratic majority in both houses. In chapter embraces the general law which repeals the charter of the city of Memcomparison with the charter sent up, and the clause which compels the acness in payment of taxes, except bonds, ly enough to flood her coffers with prom- communities in the Union. ises to pay, maturing bills and judgments for many months to come. These two clauses were carefully guarded distinct measures, or, if not, that the conspiring to prevent citizens from exfull purport and meaning of the act is not | ercising any of the rights granted them

vides that

We find no reference to a repeal of the charter of Memph's in the title of the act before us, notwithstanding Mem-phis is specially mentioned in counec-tion with her ordinances in section 42, and the eligibility of citizens to office in section 43. Besides this, we understand that the act did not otherwise pass in accordance with the constitution of the State. For instance, we are told, and the statement tallies with our special telegrams from Nashville, that the first 32 sections which originally formed Colonel Finlay's general municipal incorporation bill were defeated in the housethat is to say were rejected. On this head the constitution seems to be very plain. It says, section 19 of article 2: After a bill has been rejected, no bill con-taining the same sub-dance shall be passed into a law during the same session.

Now we have, as we have stated above, not merely the substance, but the actual words of Finlay's bill tacked on as the first part of this act. But this is not al If we are informed correctly, the original charter sent up by Memphis, with some modifications (perhaps quite as objectionable as those we think very hurtful to the city), passed on Saturday, the twentieth of March, and was actually in the hands of the governor for his approval and signature when it was recalled to the house and was rushed through both houses again in its present amended form. As the legislature adjourned on rates. Wednesday, the twenty-fourth, of course there was not time as is required by section 18, article 2 of the constitution, to "have the bill read once on three different days in each house," and we doubt—because the to collect debts due said firm.

Monday, the twenty-second of Marchthat it received "on its final passage in each house the assent of a majority of all the members to which that house shall be entitled under this constitution." Colonel Finlay's bill was rejected on the sixth of March, and by a vote to reconsider on the eighth was recalled and finally disposed of at the close of the session, as is said, in the way above described. If so, such action was clearly unconstitutional, and the act is void. And now we Policies issued upon Fire, Marine and Inland risks at equitable rates. turn to the most objectionable clause of this objectionable charter, that which in section 64, appropriates only ten cents (to be paid in "kind," of course), to the support of the public schools. THE NEW CHARTER.
